In particular, the Committee will provide advice and recommendations on needed reforms to domestic spectrum policies and management in order to: license radio frequencies in a way that maximize their public benefits; keep wireless networks as open to innovation as possible; and make wireless services available to all Americans.
2. The Committee, through a balanced membership, will provide non-Federal Government and private sector input on U.S. spectrum management policy in a manner consistent with greater disclosure and transparency. The Committee serves to facilitate increased understanding among all spectrum users about their respective interests. The Committee will provide advice to the Assistant Secretary for Communications and Information to assist in developing and maintaining spectrum management policies that enable the United States to maintain or strengthen its global leadership role in communications technology and services.
3. The Committee's focus may include, but is not limited to: expediting the introduction of wireless broadband services, especially in rural areas; addressing governmental and commercial concerns regarding public safety spectrum management issues; assisting in efforts to encourage the establishment of long-range spectrum planning processes; identifying international opportunities to advance U.S. economic interests; gathering input on the latest technology and market trends; examining the latest radio-frequency research and development outputs; exploring ways to foster more efficient and more imaginative uses of U.S. spectrum resources; and promoting the interoperability and transparency of Federal and non-Federal spectrum databases.
4. The Committee will act as a liaison between its membership and the Federal Government. It may also provide a forum for stakeholders representing current and emerging issues in spectrum management, spectrum policy, reform and technology.
5. The Committee will recommend approaches and strategies to ensure that the United States remains a leader in the introduction of new wireless technologies, while at the same time providing for the expansion of existing technologies and ensuring that the country's homeland security, national defense, and other critical government needs are satisfied.

6. The Committee will provide advice and recommendations only and will comply fully with the provisions of the Federal Advisory Committee Act.
